CHATEAU TALBOT, ST JULIEN, BORDEAUX, FRANCE

Talbot, one of the largest classed growth estates with 102 hectares under vine, is situated inland just north of Gruaud Larose. It is named after the English commander John Talbot who died at the battle of Castillon in 1453. It has been owned by the Cordier family since the early 1900s, and has long been popular in the UK. The 2011 Talbot is soft, silky and wonderfully nuanced on the palate. Much more refined from bottle than it was from barrel, the 2011 has moved toward greater finesse over the last two years. This is a lovely effort. Lifted rose petal and lavender notes add closing nuance.
